

Why do we publish insurance abstracts?

Because the N.D. Century Code says so.

26.1-03-10. Publication of abstract of annual statement and certificate of authority.

An insurance company, at the time it submits its annual statement for filing, shall submit an abstract of the annual statement for publication upon the form prescribed by the commissioner. The abstract of the annual statement of each company, other than a state or county mutual insurance company, must be published at least three times in one newspaper of general circulation, designated by the commissioner, printed and published by each judicial district in this state in which the company has an agency. The abstract of the annual statement of each state or county mutual insurance company, must be published once in a newspaper published in the county in which the company has its principal place of business, the newspaper designated by the members of the company at their annual meeting. The certificate of authority issued by the commissioner to authorize the company to do business within the state must be published in connection with the publication of the abstract of its annual statement. The fees for publication are those provided under section 46-05-03. Proof of publication must be filed with the commissioner within four months after the filing of the annual statement.

HARMON—

Tenn., and Dallas, Texas.

The machinery division sells equipment and also has mechanics on staff in Dallas and Fargo.

Harmon consigns individual pieces of equipment and also works with retiring farmers who wish to liquidate all their equipment.

The term equipment is broad, covering not only agriculture but also the forestry, construction, aviation and trucking industries. They have even consigned antiques.

As of Monday, the items for sale on their website, www.daggermachinery.com, included telehandlers, wheel loaders, planters, cultivators and a Ford F150 Lariat pickup.

Potential buyers can browse available equipment ahead of time, so they have time to research before bidding opens. As of Monday, there were several items on the site for which bidding was set to open on Wednesday, May 4. Typically there is a one-week window for bids, and the closing day for auction items is Wednesday.

Harmon says the online format opens up Dagger's auctions to a world of buyers. Whereas with the traditional format of live auctions, the seller relies on the pool of buyers who take the time to travel to an auction site to view items the day of the auction, online auctions allow buyers to "sit in the comfort of your own home and bid it up," Harmon said.

Dagger Auctions does a few things differently than other auction companies, Harmon noted. The first is their consignment model. Rather than charge the old standard seller's fee, where a percentage is subtracted from the sales price to pay the seller, they've found that auctions perform better with a "buyer's premium." In this scenario the fee to Dagger is paid by the buyer, in addition to his bid.

On the Dagger Auctions website, potential buyers have the opportunity to see the amount of the buyer's premium up front before bidding. The buyer's fee depends on the estimated value of the equipment, and is typically a percentage of the sales price.

For example, the buyer purchases a piece of equipment for $100,000. The buyer's fee is 10%, or $10,000. Therefore, the total cost to the buyer is $110,000.

The seller gets a check for the amount of the high bid, and Dagger keeps the $10,000.

Another thing that differentiates Dagger Machinery from its competition is the logistics services they offer. Harmon explained that a buyer can contract with Dagger to have the equipment delivered to his farm or business.

SENIORS —

they may not do as well. "This prompted me to open my own private practice providing comprehensive driving evaluations in my client's home communities," she says.

In addition to behind-the-wheel evaluations, Dak-Minn Driving and Home Evaluations also specializes in clinical tests and home assessments, and not just for seniors.

While Tandberg's clientele consists largely of the elderly and those suffering from cognitive decline, someone's ability to live independently can also be impacted by medical conditions and traumatic events - such as a stroke or a fall.

Tandberg's business is designed to help those people lead normal and independent lives. Her advice often leads to modifications and installations in her clients' homes, such as widening doorways, adding handrails or replacing stairs with ramps.

For those unable to drive with standard equipment, there are also options such as hand controls, spinner knobs or a left-foot accelerator.

Tandberg says those options require testing and an endorsement from the state, after she's provided or assisted with the necessary training to get her clients proficient with that equipment. She also says that she's aware of grants and funding resources that may be available depending on the situation.

"I have found a passion for helping people maintain their independence as long as possible," says Tandberg. "Being from a rural community I know how important that is."

Rather than traveling to Fargo or Grand Forks for a stressful driving test in the city, Tandberg's clients can meet with her in the comfort of their own homes; and for both driving and home evaluations, she works with her clients and their family members to review any recommendations.

Tandberg says that her business is particularly useful for those in small communities, who may not always have the same resources available to them as those in the city.

"Our small communities are very underserved when it comes to rehabilitation," she says, "especially in the realm of safety with driving and community mobility."

Dak-Minn Driving and Home Evaluations is helping people live independently throughout eastern North Dakota, including those in the Carrington and New Rockford areas.

Those interested can reach Tandberg through her website: dakmindriving.com, or by calling (701) 330-4445. Tandberg notes that she can be contacted for a consultation directly, but any assessments require the referral of a physician.
