Maintenance can prevent baler fires Even though most of "Add that combination of friction can allow for dust North Dakota has received

adequate rainfall this summer, reports of round baler fires are occurring.

PLUS

"It seems odd to think about the risk of baler fires right now, as the grass is still green in many areas where hay is still being harvested," says Tom Clays, North Dakota Forest Service director. "However, the amount of 'fuel' or biomass that is out there this year in the ditches, meadows and Conservation Reserve Program (CRP) areas is substantial. There's enough 'fuel' out there that can easily catch fire with just one spark or overheated part and quickly become out of control."

Timely baler maintedangerous round baler

"A common cause of round baler fires is mechanical issues, primarily problems with roller bearings found within the baler," says Angie Johnson, North Dakota State University Extension farm and ranch safety coordinator. "The roller bearings inside the round baler can easily become damaged due to wear and extended use. Once the bearings are damaged, they become dangerously hot and can start a fire inside the baler

As the haying season shifts into more mature and drier grasses, including the baling of small grain straw, these types of fuels can burn quickly and spread over a large area.

"We have to remember that there is a tremendous amount of friction and static that builds up during baling," says Johnson.

friction and static electricity or a mechanical failure on the baler, with extremely dry hay, and you have the perfect recipe to start a fire.

To prevent round baler fires this haying season, Johnson recommends conducting a visual assessment of the baler by walking around the baler when both the baler and tractor are shut off. Performing preventative measures, including daily maintenance when in active use, can help farmers maintain their equipment for peak performance, reduce repairs and prevent equipment fires.

When assessing the rollers and belts inside the nance is key to prevent round baler, farmers may need to have the chamber door of the baler open.

"Always make sure the chamber door is in the lock position by manually shifting the lever to the lock position," says Johnson. By locking the chamber door open, you prevent the possibility of the chamber door closing on you if the hydraulics of the chamber door fail."

During the visual assessment of the baler, Johnson recommends farmers consider the following actions:

Inspect bearings, chains, hoses and belts for wear, and replace worn parts. Some balers use chains or drums rather than belts to create the bale. Take time to inspect.

Remove excess net wrap and/or twine pieces that may have accumulated around the rollers. Look for purple discoloration on the shields of the baler where the roller bearings are located, as this could be a sign of a "hot spot" on the baler. These hot spots are indicators wearing out and needs to be replaced.

Use an air compressor to blow dry matter, such as leaves, dust and plant stems, off the baler after every 50 to 75 bales. An infrared heat thermometer is an inexpensive tool ($20 to $40) found at farm and ranch supply stores to help prevent baler "An infrared heat thermometer is a great tool to help monitor the temperature of your baler's roller bearings," says Johnson. "Take the time for a stretch break while baling and use the thermometer to check the temperature of your baler's roller bearings. If you see a temperature spike with one or more bearings, it is time to stop and get the bearing replaced before your baler becomes damaged and catches fire."

Farmers should also carry a fire extinguisher and make sure it is full and working correctly, Johnson

"Let others know your plans before going out to bale hay so if you don't return when you said you would, someone can check to make sure you are OK," says Johnson. "This also means you should carry a fully charged cellphone with you while baling."
In the event of a fire, immediately call 911. Firefighters can help contain the fire quickly and lessen that the bearing might be the extent of the damage.

2022-2023 Chronic Wasting Disease Proclamation Summary

The North Dakota Game and Fish Department declares the following precautions against the spread of Chronic Wasting Disease (CWD) into and within North Dakota.

CWD affects the nervous system of white-tailed deer, mule deer, elk, moose, and other cervids and it is always fatal!

It is illegal to hunt big game over bait or place bait to attract big game for the purpose of hunting in deer hunting units 1, 2B, 3A1, 3A2, 3A3, 3A4, 3B1, 3C, 3D1, 3D2, 3E1, 3E2, 3F1, 3F2, 4A, 4B, 4C, 4D, 4E and 4F. In addition, it is illegal to hunt big game over bait or place bait on any Department Wildlife Management Areas. Bait includes grain, seed, on place bath or any bepartment within the management acted as a bartinctuce stain, seed, or natural or manufactured food placed by an individual. Baiting does not include agricultural practices, gardens, wildlife food plots, agricultural crops, livestock feeds, fruit or vegetables in their natural location such as apples on or under an apple tree, or unharvested food or vegetables in a garden. This ban does not apply to wildlife management activities conducted by or under the direction of the Department. Carcass Transportation this illegal to transport into or within North Dakota the whole carcass or carcass parts of: a) a white-tailed deer, mule deer, moose, elk, or members of the cervid family harvested outside of North Dakota; b) a white-tailed deer or mule deer from deer hunting units 3A1, 3A2, 3B1, 3C, 3D1, 3E2, 3F2, 4B and 4C in North Dakota; c) a moose from moose hunting units M10 and M11 in North Dakota; and d) an elk from elk hunting unit E2 and E6 in North Dakota; except for the following lower risk portions of the carcass: Meat that is cut and wrapped either commercially or privately.

Quarters or other portions of meat with no part of the spinal column or head attached.

Hides with no heads attached. Clean (no hide or brain tissue present) skull plates with antlers attached.
